INTERNET CRIMES AGAINST CHILDREN

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Internet Crimes Against Children is a 16-hour course designed to provide law enforcement officers the information and skills necessary to recognize and properly respond to criminality involving the use of computers and the Internet to exploit children for the purpose of sexual gratification. The course is designed for officers newly assigned to handle the investigation of the computer exploitation of children.

The course will include information on: the types of offenders, sources used to exploit children, the current applicable statutes and requirements, ways to investigate this type of criminal activity, and the collection of computer evidence. A demonstration of on site search software and live Internet conversations demonstrating the severity of the problem will also be conducted.

PREREQUISITES:

Successful completion of Basic Law Enforcement Academy or equivalent as determined by Dean.
